Convention Hall, Philadelphia.

June 21 (AP)—Banners waving, Republicans streamed into their convention hall today cockily confident they are picking the next President but still as uncertain as ever who that man is.

All the preliminary sparring before the first gavel's fall left the race for the coveted nomination apparently still wide open.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft acknowledged were out in front, but lacking the votes at this time to assure the nomination. Each said he felt certain of winning.

So did Harold E. Stassen. Stassen said he would be a "strong third" on the first ballot and the winner on the ninth.

Vote Wednesday, Thursday

Senator Arthur A. Vandenberg's friends were not calling their shots in that manner. But they claimed Vandenberg is in a good position to step out toward the end and run off with the big prize. Backers of half a dozen others talked similarly.

The actual balloting will not start before Wednesday, or maybe Thursday. Meantime, the GOP's biggest oratorical guns will belabor the Democrats and the party will adopt its platform.

Today's first session was just sort of a warm up for that — prayer, song and welcoming talks, plus whamming of the Democrats by GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece.

In the nomination race, everybody was keeping the closest watch on the Pennsylvania and Illinois delegations. The final winner may depend on where these powerful delegations finally line up.

They talked things over last night, but kept their strength uncommitted so far as the leading candidates are concerned. In the early balloting (Please turn to Page 2)

EASTERN AREA
RABBIT GROUP
MAY MEET HERE

The Adams County Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' association—board of directors, meeting Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Gettysburg, voted to ask the Eastern Area breeders to hold their 1948 convention at Gettysburg in connection with the rabbit show to be held by the county group in the Hotel Gettysburg annex October 22, 23, and 24.

At the same time plans were made to place 150 rabbits on exhibition at the South Mountain Fair, with David Altland, Orntanna R. 2, named chairman of the committee in charge of the display.

The motion of the county group to entertain the Eastern U. S. rabbit breeders for the area's convention came as a result of a request made by the president of the Eastern group that the county breeders permit the Eastern convention to be held here. The representative from the Eastern breeders who was scheduled to be here for Sunday's meeting could not attend due to illness, but the local organization planned to notify the Eastern group immediately that the bid had been accepted, and it was thought that in all probability the convention will be held here.

Two Ohio firms have asked to purchase the entire output of rabbits each week or month from the (Please turn to Page 8)

State GOP Delegates Will Back Martin Indefinitely

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP)—Top Pennsylvania Republican leaders moved today to end a bitter feud in the state's delegation to the GOP National convention behind the candidacy of "favorite son" Edward Martin.

The delegation, with only one formal dissent, voted last night to stick with the Pennsylvania senator indefinitely when the balloting begins to pick the presidential nominee.

The harmony move was sparked by Elder Marshall, of Pittsburgh, former law partner of Gov. James H. Duff, at a pre-convention caucus that packed a room at the Benjamin Franklin hotel with delegates, newsmen and party members.

One Objector

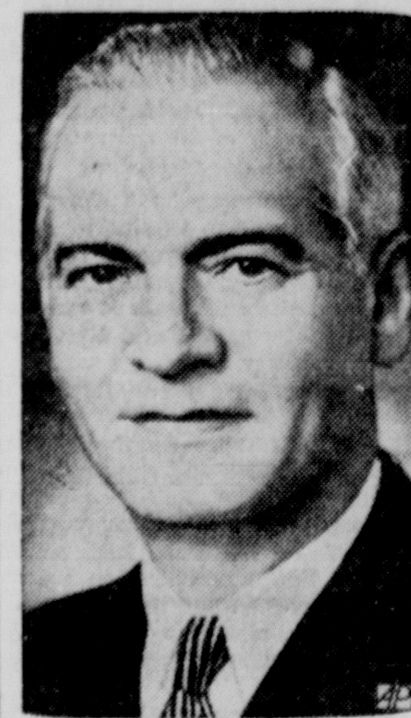

The sole objector was Esdras Howell, of Scranton, Pa., who said he would vote for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

"It was a fine and harmonious meeting," said Governor Duff.

The red-haired Pennsylvania governor had been reported at odds with Senator Martin, G. Mason Owlett, Republican National committee, and Joseph Grundy, former head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. The four leaders were said to be far apart on policy and candidates.

Keynoter

Governor Dwight H. Green of Illinois is scheduled to deliver the keynote address at the Republican National convention at Philadelphia this evening at 9 o'clock.

Horn-Tooters
To Be Nabbed

Disturbed by noise late at night or in the early hours of the morning when you are trying to sleep? Particularly by the "beep-beep" of automobile horns?

Borough police today promised at least a measure of relief. To prove that they don't like unnecessary blasts of auto horns any more than other residents of Gettysburg, they have been declared and one arrest has been made. Others are promised.

Mark Spaulding, Jr., Gettysburg R. 1, was charged today before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder with unnecessary use of the horn of an automobile he was operating.

Chief Makes Charge

Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster said today that Spaulding drove up and down and around the town late Saturday night, particularly on Baltimore, York and Chambersburg streets, rendering the night air with blasts on his horn, and that he not only did it last Saturday night, but committed the same offense against the peace and quiet of the borough the preceding Saturday night.

"Other are going to be charged with the same offense as fast as we catch them, if they continue to drive around town late at night or early in the morning and shatter the air with their wholly unnecessary noise," Harpster warned.

GOP Confident

Illinois will stick with favorite son Gov. Dwight Green; Pennsylvania with Senator Edward Martin.

Stassen Confident

Stassen made his "ninth ballot" prediction at a news conference held in the hour before the convention opened. He began by introducing Governor Fred Aandahl of North Dakota who told the reporters that the 11 votes of the North Dakota delegation are for Stassen.

Stassen said he had conferred with the Arizona and Montana delegations and "found positive support on both."

A reporter asked about "reports of a combination of Stassen and Taft to stop Dewey?"

"We are in no combinations and there will not be any combinations," Stassen said. "We are making a hard-driving, strenuous and clean campaign."

Taft also held a news conference at the same time at his hotel. He predicted it will take at least four or five ballots to select the nominee and predicted he will have about 300 votes on the first ballot. It will take 548 to win the nomination.

Taft sat in at breakfast with the Massachusetts and Montana delegations, but told newsmen he was not in a position to say whether he had made any progress there.

Dewey Leaders Confident

Dewey's campaign manager, Herbert Brownell, Jr., also met with reporters. One of them told him there are reports backers of Taft and Stassen are "ganging up" against the New York governor. He asked for comment.

Brownell replied:

"I'm not worried about it. I am not worried about anything right now. We're confident we're going to win."

The first session of the convention was called to order by Walter S. Hallanan, of West Virginia, chairman of the Arrangements committee, at 10:27 a. m. (EST).

The delegates were crammed into seats on the convention floor beneath scantily-filled galleries. Each state's delegates sat beneath red, white and blue placards bearing the names of the states.

Most Delegates Present

It looked as though most of the 1094 delegates, or their alternates, were on hand.

They rose and cheered when Hallanan introduced Miss Virginia Davis, Philadelphia, soprano, to sing the Star Spangled Banner, which traditionally opens every convention.

The Rev. Fred Pierce Corson, Methodist bishop of Philadelphia, led the first prayer. Dr. Corson is a former president of Dickinson college.

Mrs. Dudley C. Hay of Michigan, first woman secretary of the Republican National committee, read the official convention call.

Then the delegates were formally welcomed by Mayor Bernard Samuel of Philadelphia, who told them "You are among friends" and called upon them to help "maintain the precious rights for which our nation stands."

"From this convention hall," Samuel said, "will come the courageous, clear-visioned leadership to march on to ever greater achievements."

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania brought the Keystone state's welcome.

(Editor's note: See story on Page 7.)

The first session adjourned at 11:59 a. m.

LAST KIDNAPER SENT TO PRISON

The last of four men who sawed their way out of the Frederick county jail January 25, 1947, and abducted a taxicab driver for their flight across the state line was sent to prison Friday on a kidnapping charge, the Associated Press reported.

Guy Howard Willis, 53, was sentenced to 15 years in prison after pleading guilty in Des Moines, Ia., to a charge of kidnapping the driver, Mehrl Hobbs, and taking him to Gettysburg.

The three others, Harry Fillmore Ball, 36, of Frederick, and James Melvin Hite, 28, and Lloyd Roger Mauk, 26, both of Cumberland were arrested shortly after the break. They were convicted June 9, 1947, of kidnapping by a Federal court jury and sentenced to a total of 41 years.

After separating at Gettysburg, Ball and Mauk headed west. They were picked up in Pittsburgh February 4, 1947. Hite was arrested three days after the break at Bradford, Pa.

Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey in Des Moines ordered Willis' term be served concurrently with a 10-year sentence Willis now is serving in an Iowa State prison. He pleaded guilty last March to a breaking and entering charge in Davenport, Ia.

Willis was tried in Des Moines after he requested transfer of his case there from Baltimore.

Attorney E. V. Bullett was named master in the divorce action of Guy R. Helman, York Springs R. D., versus Mary E. Black Helman, Carlisle, by the Adams county court Saturday.

LOUIS OUT TO BEAT WALCOTT; CHAMP FAVORED

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, June 21 (AP)—Looking sharper and more vicious than he has been for some time, Joe Louis was almost ready today to make his next and perhaps final bid for fistic immortality.

Only a few finishing touches remained for the Brown Bomber before he steps into the Yankee Stadium ring Wednesday night for his 15-round return title bout with Jersey Joe Walcott.

After weeks of listless performances, the champion appears to have finally come into his own. In his last few workouts, the champ has shown some of the power punching that carried him to the heavyweight throne.

Out to Beat Walcott

Louis is dead set on whipping Walcott. He has built up a cold anger against the veteran who carried him the full 15 rounds last December 5 and almost scored an upset. For Louis, who won the crown from Jimmie Braddock almost 11 years ago, this 25th title defense is the last big obstacle.

The bookmakers figure the Bomber will make it. He's a 5 to 13 favorite to win and a 5 to 6 choice to flatten Walcott.

Louis weighed 214 after yesterday's drill and probably will scale about that at the noon weigh-in Wednesday. He weighed 211 for the first bout after drying out.

Walcott, who stressed speed in his five-round practice Sunday, tipped the beam at 195, close to the poundage he'll carry on the big night. He weighed 194½ last December.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)
The Albany Senators rested in second place in the eastern baseball league today after scoring their first victory in Wilkes-Barre's Artillery park since 1946.

The Senators, who finished last week in fourth place, marked the occasion Sunday with a pair of shutouts, 7 to 0 and 2 to 0.

Meanwhile, the Williamsport Tigers dropped two games to the Binghamton Triplets, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0, to fade from second to fourth place.

Hartford and Scranton traded shutouts, Scranton copping the opener 5 to 0, and dropping the Nightcap, 2 to 0. Utica and Elmira also split a double bill. Utica took the first game, 9 to 3, and lost the second, 6 to 5.

A'S TUMBLED TO 3RD PLACE BY DOUBLEHEADER

By RALPH RODEN

(AP Sports Writer)

Bill Veck, major league baseball's No. 1 showman, is a very happy guy today, thanks to Cleveland's rapid baseball fans.

Cleveland fans set a major league attendance record yesterday to fulfill one of Veck's pet ambitions.

A total of 82,781 paid to see the American league's front-running Indians take a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday. The crowd topped the previous high of 81,841 set May 30, 1938, for a twin bill in New York between Boston and the New York Yankees.

Red Sox Beat Tigers

For a while it appeared the Indians would disappoint the big crowd. The Athletics jumped on Bobby Feller for a 3-0 lead but the Indians staged a four-run seventh inning rally and went on to score a 4-3 triumph. The Indians breezed home in the nightcap, 10-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Bob Lemon, who became the first major league pitcher to win 10 games this year.

The defeats dropped the A's from second to third place as the New York Yankees became runners-up by taking a twin bill from the Browns in St. Louis, 4-2 and 6-2. Joe DiMaggio clouted three homers. One in the first game and two in the second, to spearhead the Yankee drive.

Boston's fast-climbing Red Sox trounced the Tigers, 8-3, in a single game at Detroit to move over the Tigers into fourth place.

At Chicago, the Washington Senators divided a doubleheader with the White Sox. The Sox won the opener, 8-5, and the Senators the nightcap, 4-1, to end an eight-game losing streak.

Pirates Split

The National league's pace-setting Boston Braves also swept a doubleheader, beating the Cincinnati Reds, 5-4 and 4-1, in Boston. The victories boosted Boston's margin to a game and a half over the runner-up Pittsburgh Pirates, who split a pair with the Phillies in Philadelphia.

The Pirates, after Dutch Leonard beat them, 9-0, on four hits, collected 11 to win the second tilt, 7-5. Ralph Kiner clouted his 18th and 19th homers of the year to feature the Pirate attack.

Manager Eddie Dyer's St. Louis Cardinals remained two games back of the Pirates. The Red Birds split with the Giants at New York, winning the first game, 7-2, but dropping the finale, 6-4.

In a single game at Brooklyn the Chicago Cubs downed the Dodgers, 6-4, with Andy Pafko and Bob Scheffing collecting three safeties apiece to lead the Cub assault against three Dodger hurriers.

Sport Shorts

Chicago, June 21 (AP)—Welterweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson has a 15-round title date with 21-year-old Bernard Docusen at Comiskey park tonight, provided a date with the scales doesn't further mess up the off-and-on brawl.

Robinson's third title defense originally was scheduled at Comiskey park last Thursday night, but the promoters called it off because of rain.

The four-day delay in re-scheduling the affair resulted because the Chicago White Sox had to do some baseballing in their park over the week-end.

Langhorne, Pa., June 21 (AP)—Taking the lead at the 66th lap, Walt Brown, Massapequa, L. I., roared across the finish line seven laps ahead of his closest rival to win the 110-mile AAA-sanctioned national big car championship at the Langhorne speedway. Brown, who took the lead after Ted Horn, Paterson, N. J., developed motor trouble, was timed at one hour, six minutes and 55.66 seconds.

London, June 21 (AP)—Lawn tennis's great show, the Wimbledon fortnight, opens today with a multi-tide of men's singles matches.

The field of entries is not what it used to be, and there still is a gaping hole in the center court roof from a German bomb. But it still is Wimbledon, and toward the end the fans will be standing in line all night to buy tickets.

Wide screw-topped jars are excellent for picnic desserts. A baked apple surrounded with soft custard sauce can go into each or they can hold pudding.

Conewago VFW at Greenmount.

Heidlersburg moved into first place in the South Penn Baseball league Sunday afternoon by blanking Barlow 5-0 in a well-played game at Barlow.

Heidlersburg's triumph moved it one-half a game ahead of the idle Conewago VFW team whose tilt with Gettysburg here was postponed due to wet grounds.

Weigle held Barlow to five hits while his team mates collected nine. Cashtown poled 12 hits in scoring an 11-2 victory over Brushtown at Cashtown. The contest was comparatively close until the eighth when Cashtown tallied six runs without the aid of a hit.

W. Bucher and D. Bucher each secured three hits, two of the latter's being doubles. Kump fanned 11 Brushtown batters.

Wenksville and Granite staged a slugfest match at Granite with the former team eking out a 10-9 decision. Wenksville held a 9-2 lead going in to the last of the seventh inning when Granite came up with six runs. Each team scored one run in the final frame.

Granite's 10 errors proved costly. The winners also were guilty of five miscues.

Bonneauville scored a 5-3 decision over Greenmount on the latter's field.

On Saturday Barlow triumphed 6-3 at Granite in a play-off of a game postponed from June 13. Four runs in the third inning gave Barlow the decision in the fast contest.

EX-CADDY IS PA. GOLF CHAMP

Harrisburg, June 21 (AP)—Twenty-six-year-old Sirio Startoni, of Lebanon, who learned his golf while a caddy, is the new central Pennsylvania amateur golf champion.

The Lebanon Country club star defeated Harry Haversick, Jr., of Lancaster, in yesterday's 18-hole final match by a margin of one up on the nearby West Shore Country club course.

Earlier, Startoni who formerly caddied at the Hershey Country club, took the measure of three of the district's outstanding golfers. He upset favored Bob Davis, of Hershey, in the opening round of match play on Saturday, and went on to defeat Lynn Creason, of Colonial country, three times Harrisburg city champion, by a margin of two and one.

In his title match with Haversick, Startoni faltered at the start and was two down at the end of 12 holes when he regained his stride. He squared the match on the 15th green, and captured the sixteenth by a daring wood shot out of the rough.

Today's Talk

INDISPENSABLE

None of us should ever own the idea that he is indispensable. No one is—no one ever has been. There are those, however, who think they are indispensable. Such a one all too often is tempted to lower his efficiency, and is often replaced by one who thinks only of doing his job in the best possible manner. He is the valuable man.

There is such a thing as working
yourself into a position where you feel that nothing can stop you, and
that you are supreme in your field.
The fall of such a one is tragic.
The one with a better idea may be the one to replace that one. Better ideas, in the possession of better
men, give us progress.

There was a time when the horse
and buggy seemed indispensable.
They have long largely been replaced with machines that have revolutionized travel and farming.
Even air travel is cutting in on train travel, so that great improvements have had to be made in the service offered by the railroads.

There is always the temptation on
the part of the one who thinks himself indispensable to overwork and worry himself to the point where his decline sets in—and another
must take his place. Too many able
and brilliant workers are cheating
themselves of long life by attempting more than they can efficiently
handle.

The indispensable man, as he
thinks himself to be, usually sepa-
rates himself from the "team," and
there is apt to be a lack of unity
in the carrying on of the work of the organization in which he works. The tiny electric contact in your automobile may be a very small matter—far from being compared to the engine itself, but it is indispensable only as it works in unity with every other part.

We become most indispensable
when we feel that we are the least indispensable! The quiet, methodical worker, feeling his importance
only as it affects the well-being
and smooth working of the entire organization in which he works, is always the important worker, and
the most dependable one.

No matter how high a position
one may hold in life, the one who holds it is never indispensable. This has been proved time and time
again. The most recent outstanding example is that of Nehru succeeding Gandhi.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Old Inns"

Just Folks

TRAINED TO BE ROBINS

Three robins left the nest today.
The mother sent them on their way.
And as she bade them all goodbye
I wondered was it with a sigh?

I've watched her through the window pane
Her fledglings small begin to train,
And with devoted patience give
Instruction in the way to live.

I've seen her take them to the ground
And show them how and where is found

The food that suits the robin best,
And what to use to build a nest.

Last task! She taught them how to fly
With coaxing 'til they dared to try.
Then sent them off with loving
trust,

Prepared to live as robins must.

topped with a miniature bride and groom, occupied the center of the refreshment table which was also
decorated with cut flowers and candies, and a buffet lunch was served.

The couple left on a wedding trip
to an unannounced destination. The bride's going away outfit was a light
blue dress, a white coat, and navy
blue and white accessories. She wore an orchid corsage. Upon their

CABBAGE FOR WINTER STORAGE

Vigorously rooted plants for the important late crop in cabbage
should be set out no later than
July 20 to August 1 in this region.
Therefore, timely emphasis is merited on two steps toward this goal—(1) Every gardener should plan maximum production of late
cabbage for making sauerkraut and
for storing by burial and other suitable methods; (2) Seed should be sown soon for growing these late
plants or arrangements completed
for buying them from a reliable
source which can guarantee freedom from bed-borne and seed-
borne diseases.

Perhaps no other late vegetable
deserves more serious consideration
than cabbage. Not only can the

TOMATO PLANTS NEED PRUNING TO BOOST YIELD

Tomato plants in the home garden need to be pruned to direct the flow of plant food and water into fruit production and to avoid over-
grown plants difficult to tie to stakes
or any other support.

Simply of removing sucker growths
by pinching or cutting them out
before they attain an appreciable
size. Suckers develop in the axils
where the leaf stem joins the main stem or stalk. If the suckers are permitted to develop for a week or longer
the take on a mature appearance which confuses many gardeners who think they are part of the main plant and are reluctant to remove them. Removing suckers after they have attained size is actually
a plant-thinning process.

Unwanted sucker growth will appear, not only on the original stalk
but on all side growth (suckers)
allowed to develop as side stems. It must be removed again if it reappears. Successful pruning means going over each plant at regular intervals, not longer than a week apart,
throughout the season.

Pruning, of course, is mandatory
where tomato plants are to be trained to one, two or three stems
and tied to stakes, a trellis or other support. Gardeners fortunate enough to have had luck with early-set
plants have already started this work. Many other gardeners, held up by late frosts or wet weather,
have plants that are beginning to
require weekly attention.

Earlier Tomatoes Better Quality

Pruning and training result in earlier and first-quality fruit, but
the quantity, particularly on plants
trained to one stem, is likely to be reduced. Plants set only two feet
apart, with each tied to a straight
stake, have room for little more than a single stem, the larger number of plants in the patch making up
the quantity.

Where plants are spaced a little farther apart, two or three short
cross arms nailed along the upper
half of each stake will furnish adequate support for two stems to each plant. Where this is done, stakes
should be stout and set twelve to eighteen inches in the ground.

Plants trained to two or three stems are easily handled on the garden fence or the trellis of wood or wire. Heavy-gauge wire stretched along the top and bottom and middle
of posts set eight to ten feet apart
forms a fine support. Stout twine, criss-crossed up and down between
the wires will give additional support and ties. Tripods made with six-foot stakes, set three feet apart at the bottom, are a stable support for
three plants trained to one or two stems each.

Mulching Good Practice

Where three stems are to be developed, the first side stem is allowed to grow out from the sucker
or side growth that develops on
the main stalk in the axil of the first or second leaf stem from the ground. Another one is left to develop on the opposite side of the plant, two or two and a half feet
from the ground, and the third or main stem is allowed to grow up to whatever height the gardener desires. There it is topped. On two-stalk plants, only the one lower
side stem is permitted to develop.

Soft twine, narrow strips of cloth
or other material that will not cut
the plant is used to tie them to their supports. Cut the ties in lengths
that will permit you to tie them
around the plant stem, and knot
them at the back of the stake. Stems
should be secured at ten to twelve-inch intervals. The ties will give maximum support when placed just below a leaf stem. Plants on a trellis
are trained in a modified fan shape
to allow good sun to reach each stem.

Mulching is good practice around plants grown on supports. A two to three-inch mulch of straw, dried
grass clippings or old leaves placed

fully controlled by prompt applications of rotenone, preferably as a dust, as soon as the first worms are found feeding on the plants. Cabbage aphids (plant lice) must be killed off before they have severely
weakened the plants by their feeding. Nicotine sulfate as a spray in soapy water or as a fresh dust is recommended, with applications repeated every two or three days until
the lice are exterminated.

If the late crop is grown where
an earlier and heavily fertilized
vegetable has been harvested, such
as potatoes for example, little additional fertilizer or manure will likely be needed. However, if the first
vegetable was not heavily fertilized,
it may be wise to apply 400 to 600
pounds per acre of a 6-8-6 mixture
and work it uniformly into the top soil before plants are set out. Too,
the plants should have one or two
side dressings with nitrate of soda
or the new ammonium nitrate to hasten growth after plants have been set out two to four weeks.

Readers with any questions to ask
on growing late cabbage should not delay to write the editor at once
for all the information they desire.

manently wet area that defies drain-

Chapter 10

The taxi took me down the street past Dr. Stokes' house and I made it stop two corners beyond. There I paid the driver off, walked back a little way, and was able to see that there was a light upstairs on his side of the duplex where the master bedroom must be. I sat down on the curb to wait.

Finally the light went off upstairs in the doctor's house. I waited a couple of minutes more. His car came rolling out of the drive way and up the street past me.

The garage was attached to the house, with a door leading in. I went in and shut the door after me.

I concentrated on Dr. Stokes' quarters, opening his closet and pawing in among his suits on their hangers. The third or fourth I pulled out and carried to the window for a close look was the black-and-white tweed.

I studied the cuffs. Each was decorated with three buttons in a row and no empty place to show where a button was missing. But one of the three on the right cuff wasn't black with white flecks, like the others. It was plain black and to judge by how tight its thread was it had been very recently sewed on.

I hung the suit back up and tried to make everything look as it had looked when I first touched it. As I walked away along the street, I realized how much of the evening I had still ahead of me.

I called the Ealing number. "This is Mr. Yates, the investigator," I said. "Is Mrs. Ealing there?"

"She went out a while ago."

"Then I remembered that I wanted to visit Diane Ealing's place in her absence," Mrs. Pettigrew, I said. "I want to talk to your husband. I'm coming over."

Mrs. Pettigrew met me at the door and took me back to the kitchen, where her husband sat with his elbow on a table and his sore hand sticking up in the air, as if he wanted to keep the blood from settling in it and making it hurt worse. "I want to look at something tonight," I announced. "Not my hand?"

"No, I want to see the place where you got hurt. The tool shed."

He got up and went to a sideboard. Pulled open a drawer with his left hand and got out a flashlight.

The interior of the shed was full of tools, everything as clean and orderly as on a military post. All but the sickles — five of them, lying scattered on the concrete floor next to the rear wall. There were blotches of blood leading from them to the door.

The hole in the two-by-four was uneven instead of round. Below the nail hole I could see a slight dent in the wood, a dent made by heavy pressure of something hard and flat — the head of a hammer, say, set there so that the claws go round the nail head, and then pushed strongly against the wood to pry.

"Who drove this nail, Petty?" I called.

"I did," he answered from the door.

"That was years ago, wasn't it? And you drove the nail in hard and straight? You don't have to tell me, you're the type that would do a good job, even driving nails. Now what happened to that same nail?"

I stooped to look among the scattered sickles. After a moment I found the nail. It was lying under the blade of one sickle. I carefully poked it into the clear with the point of a pencil and picked it up.

It was a sixpenny, cast out of iron, the kind you can buy anywhere if there doesn't happen to be a hardware shortage. Toward the point it was bright, where it had bedded into the wood. On the rusty part of the shank, close to the head, was something else, a bit of black not much larger than a match head, that stood out clear on the dull red.

I stepped back under the hanging globe and bent and scowled to see my clearest. The black blob was tar, dried hard. Across its upper surface was a thin sliced-in depression, made by a well sharpened edge.

The one that had blood flecks on it was the most brightly and carefully sharpened. I knew why at once. It was the sickle that hung first to hand.

On the edge was a bit of black, contrasting with the stale red of the blood. Tar. I turned my attention to the nail again. The bright part that had been sunk into the wood was more than just unruined. It gleamed as if — well, as if it had been greased. From my pocket I took the envelope in which J. D. had put the note for me. I dropped the nail inside and returned the envelope to my vest pocket, next to the one that held the black-and-white button. Then I rejoined Pettigrew. I turned out the light, locked the door and paused with the key in my hand.

"You carry this key with you all of the time?" I suggested.

Pettigrew shook his head. "No, it hangs in the kitchen with some other keys. But I didn't happen to take it out of my pocket again after cutting myself."

"You sharpen these things every week in a certain routine way, on a certain day. Probably even a certain hour of the day — around four o'clock, you said."

"No, usually just after lunch," he replied, mildly correcting me. "But this time Dr. Dick asked me to drive with my wife to look at some berries he wanted her to can. They were for sale at a roadside stand in the country."

"What kind of berries?" I asked, and it was really an idle question.

"No kind worth mentioning. They weren't as good as Mr. Dick had seemed to think."

"Well, your day for sharpening have been quite an eventful one," things this last weeks seems to Petty," I said.

I slid the key into my pocket.

We went back to the house together. I took the address of the roadside berry stand and said goodbye to him and his scowling wife.

Chapter 11

I was at the office by nine o'clock, and J. D. hadn't shown yet. I telephoned police headquarters and got Holmgren on the phone.

"Got anything actual to say?" he asked me. "If not, ring off. I've got a busy half day. I go off duty at noon."

"I think I'd like to talk to you," I suggested. "I mean, on your half-day off. Unofficially. About six miles off the record."

"Meaning you want me to do some work without pay," he laughed. "Sure. Come and meet me here at noon."

"Since it's unofficial, I'd rather meet you somewhere else."

"Well, there's a bar down the street from here, where most of the city folk eat."

"Then let's meet at another. You're the only cop I want to talk to, or even have listening."

He named another bar. As I put the phone back on its stand, J. D. came in.

"Good morning," she said, smiling nicely.

"Did you have a good time last night, chief?"

"I was bored."

"Mmm-hmmm," I said. "I can imagine."

"But the evening wasn't anything like a loss to the firm," went on J. D.

"No?"

"Dr. Stokes told me lots of things — things about Diane Ealing and Jim Kuhl. How far they were going with their affair he couldn't say, but Richard Ealing, as his close friend, was upset and angry. I think he'll tell me more tonight."

Just then the phone rang. J. D. answered it and then poked it toward me.

"For you, Jack. A lady."

I took the phone. It was Diane Ealing.

"Mrs. Pettigrew tells me you were here again last night," she said, in a voice very soft and pleasant for that time in the morning. "I'm sorry I wasn't here to help you."

"Me, too," I lied. "I'm bringing you back the derringer you lent me. I'm sorry to say I fired the cartridge that went with it."

I hung up, and not a word did J. D. say.

It was Diane Ealing who opened the front door for me. "I thought it might be you," she greeted me, and smiled a sort of special smile.

"Thanks for the loan of the gun," I said, and held it out to her.

"I was having a second cup of coffee," she said, "and I put out an extra cup for you. Won't you join me?"

I took the cup she offered me and had a sip. It was better than what Dr. Stokes had served to J. D. and me the morning before.

She picked up the derringer from where she'd laid it on the coffee table, snapped the barrel sideways, and squinted down the muzzle, holding her thumbnail at the breach to reflect light up and through. She knew about guns, all right.

"Thank you for cleaning it," she said after a moment. "And I'm not in the least miffed about your firing a test bullet from it."

"An investigator has to take every angle into consideration," I said, half apologizing. "When an angle is eliminated, he can forget it. Not before."

"So you're forgetting the angle that includes me?"

"The angle that includes that gun," I corrected. "There are a few other angles that interest me. I want to ask you some things about Dr. Stokes."

"Dr. Stokes was my husband's friend," she said. "Not mine. Dick and I each had our own friends."

"I've heard," and while I spoke I was watching her, "that Dr. Stokes used to be your friend, too."

"Yes, he was. As a matter of fact, I think it was he who introduced Dick to me. But he didn't stay my friend, not my close friend. Dr. Stokes can be difficult at times."

"I said, 'Anyway, he's a lady-killer.'"

"He didn't have his own way with me," she said. "I convinced him — the doctor — that the passes must stop. After that, he kept on being my physician. But nothing more. He isn't my type."

"You were drinking with him at about five-thirty or so, on the afternoon of your husband's death," I remembered.

"Is there anything wrong in that, Mr. Yates?"

"Not a thing. What I'm getting up to is that you were with him then. I wonder if possibly you remember what kind of a suit he was wearing."

"I remember very well indeed," she said at once. "It was an Oxford

PROCLAIMS AMNESTY

Manila, June 21 (AP) — President Quirino tonight proclaimed amnesty for the Bukhalahaps after Luis Taruc, leader of the armed peasants, voluntarily had surrendered. Taruc and his estimated 50,000 followers were given 20 days to surrender their arms. Quirino and Taruc shook hands after the amnesty proclamation was signed — ending almost two years of fighting in central Luzon.

Sitt, York.

gray, double-breasted.

"Do you always remember things that well?" I asked.

"No, but I had a reason to notice his suit. He had blood on it."

"Blood!" I repeated it louder and with more excitement than I should have allowed myself.

"Why, yes," she nodded. "He'd been dressing Pettigrew's hand and he got a few splashes on his sleeve and his lapel."

"Now I'm going to ask some really personal questions," I said. "I don't have to start by asking you if Attorney James Kuhl is a close friend of yours, because plainly he is."

"I told you that Dick and I each had our own friends. We didn't feel that we had to have the same friends."

"Which means that your husband and Kuhl weren't good friends," I suggested. "How about Kuhl and Dr. Stokes?"

"They knew each other, but I doubt if they ever met except here, now and then. And no," she added, "they didn't like each other particularly."

"Now about your servants, the Pettigrews. Their whereabouts on the day of your husband's death. As I hear it, they were both gone most of the afternoon."

"Yes," she said. "I think they were."

She thought they were. I refrained from asking why she wasn't sure they were.

GETS LIFE IN HOLDUP KILLING

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP) — James F. Smith, Jr., 24, was convicted of first degree murder yesterday in the fatal shooting of Patrolman Cecil Ingling during a supermarket holdup January 30, 1947.

The jury of 10 women and two men returned the verdict after deliberating more than two days and nights. The jurors recommended life imprisonment for Smith. David Almeida and Edward Hough, have been sentenced to die in the electric chair for their roles in the fatal shooting.

The jury's verdict evoked an outburst from the widow of the slain patrolman as the jurors filed out of City Hall. "I just hope you need protection some time," she shouted between sobs.

Mrs. Helen Ingling arrived a few moments too late to get into the courtroom when the court reconvened yesterday. She hastily inquired about the verdict as the courtroom crowd began to file out.

Told it was life imprisonment, she remarked: "To think that the actual murderer only got life when his two accomplices have to pay with their lives."

Mrs. Ingling testified during Smith's trial that Smith fired the shot that killed her husband when he attempted to capture the men after the holdup.

ts exact wording is a deep secret
all the full platform committee
s. But some persons close to the dters said it will:

Pledge the party to shun iso-
lism and to continue the bi-
tisan policy of international co-
ration and American aid for na-
s resisting Communism. Senator
ndenber (R-Mich.), chairman
the Senate Foreign Relations
mmtee and a dark horse consider for the Presidential nomination, was reported to have put
his personal okay on this plank.

2. Reaffirm the GOP stand for ation of a permanent fair em-pment practice commission, for actment of anti-lynch and anti-
l tax legislation, and call for an ad to race segregation in the armed
res. Such a plank was written into
e 1944 GOP platform, but none of
e legislation has passed Congress.

Champions Free Labor
3. Refuse to yield to organized la-or's demands for repeal of the
aft-Hartley Labor law but: Re-state
e 1944 platform declaration that
e Republican party is the historical champion of free labor and assert a set of principles intended
o appeal to the working man.

The biggest GOP policy split seem-
d to be on housing.
Senator Taft of Ohio, a leading Presidential aspirant, is reported to have told some other GOP leaders
he is displeased with the housing
bill that Congress passed in its dying hours. This eliminated the pubic rent housing, slums clearance
and farm housing aids in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill Taft
drove to Senate passage weeks ago.

The measure finally passed represented a victory for another Republican, Rep. Wolcott of Michigan,
chairman of the House Banking committee. Wolcott had cried "Socialism" at the disputed provisions
of the Taft-backed bill.

May Ignore Housing
One of those who should know,
said the platform probably will be
silent on the touchy public housing
issue.

But the law-makers in Washington quieted the platform-writers'
jitters just before yesterday's dawn
adjournment when they jammed
through bills dealing with three important issues—foreign aid, the draft
and farm policy.

The party policy-makers here
were reported to have kept the wires
hot all Saturday night pleading with GOP leaders on Capitol Hill to make sure that legislation on which the platform must take a position was passed before Congress quit.

The program included one unscheduled event, a wedding, which took place at the Church of the campus immediately before the ves-

the pilgrimage.

Francis Walter, Baltimore insurance agent and Margaret Oetken,
Baltimore, both members of St.
John's Lutheran church, Baltimore,

to take part in the pilgrimage and
asked them if they too wanted to make the trip here and be married
at Gettysburg. The couple agreed,
and Doctor Keller performed the double ring ceremony here at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Later, he was liturgist for the vesper service
in the same seminary chapel for the pilgrimage service.

The Rev. Hugo W. Schroeder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran, Baltimore, delivered the sermon at the
vespers and the 30-voice senior choir
of Epiphany church, Baltimore, led by Leslie Tucker, provided the singing for the service. After the church service the 700 ate picnic lunches on
the grounds of the seminary, listened
to singing by members of the Balti-

GEN. HOWELL OF UCV EXPIRES

Bristol, Va., June 21 (AP)—Gen.
Julius Franklin Howell, former commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, died Saturday night of a heart ailment in his home here at the age of 102. He had been ill for several weeks.

Born in Nansmond county, Va., General Howell was 16 years old
when he enlisted in the Confederate Army. He was wounded in the Battle of Darbytown Road and captured
at Salver's Creek, three days before
the surrender at Appomattox.

General Howell attended Reynolds Collegiate Institute, Harvard college and the University of Pennsylvania. Later he served as a professor at the University of Arkansas and president of Mountain Home Baptist college before becoming president of Virginia Internment
college here.

He was believed to be the last surviving member of Gen. James Longstreet's command. Mrs. Helen Dorch Longstreet of Marietta, Ga., 82-year-old widow of General Longstreet, was among the hundreds of persons attending the birthday celebration for General Howell on Jan. 17. Also present were Gov. William Tuck of Virginia and Mary Pickford, General Howell's favorite actress, who came from Hollywood by plane.

The celebration, at Virginia Internment, included the unveiling of a portrait of Howell and the planting
of a red oak in his honor.

General Howell attended the Blue
and Gray reunion here in 1938 and
several years ago returned to participate in the dedication of the Battlefield site for the proposed General Longstreet memorial.

are those of Lester L. Wise, as driver of the car; Bruce E. and Ruthetta Wise, Wellsville, passengers in the car; Norman L. Thumma, Franklintown, an occupant of the car and Clyde Eichelberger and Shirley Wise, also occupants of the car.

The group in Lester Wise's car
are arguing that they should be recompensed for their losses, either through injury or in the case of Lester, for damages to his car, due to the fact that the truck driven by Wilfred Sober was parked on the highway without lights.

Sawyer is suing for damages to
the truck, and loss of the truck,
which he claims was demolished,
stating that the truck was pulled as
far off the road as it could be driven
due to an embankment and arguing that the Wise car, if properly
driven, should not have hit the truck. The truck, driven by Wilfred Sober on a hunting trip stopped because it had overheated, the complaint filed today states. The Sobers
are seeking damages for injuries
suffered by them when the car hit
the truck. Wilfred claims he had gone to the front of the truck to fix
the fan belt when the car hit the vehicle, driving it forward 35 feet
to a point where it overturned. Wilfred says he suffered a fractured
ankle, cut head, bad bruises of the body and severe shock.

His brother, Nelson A. Sober, who was assisting Wilfred in fixing the
fan belt suffered a severe laceration
of the forehead, contusions of the leg, severe shock and a disfigurement of the forehead. The father of Nelson and Wilfred, Archie Sober,
who was in the truck, was pinned
under the cab and suffered severe
concussions, a laceration of the forehead, contusions and shock, according to the complaint.

Says "Fear Of War
Grips Everyone"

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP)—Former Democratic National Chairman
James A. Farley says "fear of war
and a sense of insecurity grip everyone."

The former postmaster general
told the Pennsylvania Railroad Holy Name society's annual communion
breakfast yesterday "apprehension
as to what would and might happen
prevails."

He listed fear of Communism, war
and the atom bomb as the main concern of Americans.

Another speaker, the Most Rev.
George L. Leech, bishop of Harrisburg, added "We Americans would be fools and our generation would go down as the classic fool of all history if we were to allow ourselves to be defrauded of our democratic freedom."

LIGHTNING KILLS
BOY ON BICYCLE

Nine-year-old Wayne B. Deering,
of near Union Mills, Md., was killed
by lightning Saturday afternoon
as he rode his bicycle along a country lane within sight of his home.

Dr. James T. March, Carroll
county coroner, who investigated,
said the tragedy occurred during a series of thunderstorms that swept
that section Saturday afternoon
and evening. He signed a certificate of accidental death.

He said the Deering boy's mother
glanced out a window of their home
after the thunder crashed with a nearby flash of lightning. She saw her son lying in the lane beside his bicycle. She ran to him and carried him into the house. A physician was called but death apparently had been instantaneous.

A Westminster funeral director
took charge of the body. The Deer-
ings moved to the Maryland community several years ago from West Virginia.

Ford Offers Raise
To 110,000 Workers

Detroit, June 21 (AP)—The Ford
Motor company today offered a 11-
to 14 cents an hour wage increase
to its 110,000 CIO United Auto Workers.

The proposal called for a 14 cents
an hour boost to employees making $1.50 or more an hour. Those making less than $1.50 would receive 11 cents an hour.

Ford said this system would "erase
many of the inequities in our present wage structure."

The union had asked Ford for a 30 cents an hour increase. The average wage now is slightly above $1.50
an hour.

GOP Convention

DUFF WELCOMES GOP TO STATE; NEED NEW FAITH

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 21 (AP)—Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania said today "economic weapons alone" will not save modern civilization. He appealed to his fellow Republicans to pledge the world moral and spiritual leadership.

The world crisis, Duff said in welcoming the Republican national convention to Pennsylvania, "is too profound to be resolved solely by drawing a dollar mark across the pages of history."

"The atheistic materialism which degrades the meaning of the individual man in many portions of the world cannot be overcome by another materialism which measures our national progress only in terms of wages and profits," he said.

Plea for Liberty

In another plea for liberty for individuals throughout the world, GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece told the opening session of the convention the struggle for political mastery in this country is between the Republican and the Communist parties.

The Democratic party, Reece asserted, is "handicapped by having been in power too long" and is incapable of checking the "march of radical aggression."

Duff said in his prepared speech that mankind is looking not only for food and material things from America.

"They are asking for meaning, for hope in their struggle to regain a faith in life which has been shattered by the cruelty of unbridled power and by the devastation of unrestricted warfare," he said.

Spiritual Leadership

"Before we leave this assemblage we must define a new and responsible purpose and pledge the world a moral and spiritual leadership that alone can save us all from the deep abyss to which a pure materialism is endeavoring to engulf us."

Duff recalled that it was exactly 170 years ago, on June 21, 1778, that the federal constitution was adopted in the Quaker City. Hence the Pennsylvania governor and leader of the state's convention delegation said, "it is particularly appropriate that this convention should be held in Philadelphia."

State GOP

said to favor Dewey. But all was harmony at the delegation caucus. It was Henry Lark, of Sunbury, a Grundy leader, who first proposed that the delegation reaffirm its backing of Senator Martin. Lark's motion, however, limited it to the first ballot.

Then Marshall, a Duff man, jumped to his feet and moved that the words "the first ballot" be stricken. This was done. Duff explained that now the delegation can decide "at anytime what it wants to do."

"Peace" Meeting

Subsequently, Duff told reporters he was ready to sit down with Grundy and any other state leaders for "the purpose of ending discord in the delegation."

He made the comment when informed that Grundy had proposed that Duff meet with Senator Martin, Owlett, Mrs. Worthington Scranton, national committeewoman, state chairman M. Harvey Taylor and himself.

Grundy explained that Duff had told him he wanted to sit down with him and talk things over but that he had suggested the group should be broadened.

"The next move is up to Governor Duff," Grundy added.

A few minutes later Duff said the meeting could take place at anytime and then stood arm in arm with Senator Martin.

Most of the state leaders had met socially several hours before the caucus at the country estate of President Martin W. Clement of the Pennsylvania railroad in Bryn Mawr. Also present were Governor Dewey, Senator Robert A. Taft and Speaker Joseph Martin, all possible presidential nominees.

CHINESE REDS WORK BEYOND OWN BORDERS

By JAMES D. WHITE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Chinese Communists work far beyond the borders of their own country, throughout southeast Asia. This fact has been forcibly brought to the world's attention during the past week by events in Burma, Malaya, and Siam. The influence of Chinese Communists has also been demonstrated in the Philippines, and may exist in the Netherlands Indies where there is another large Chinese minority.

One thing that has made this possible is the dual nationality which overseas Chinese often possess. They may be born far from China and have certain rights as nationals of the country or dependency where they were born (not always as full fledged citizens). But at the time, they are considered Chinese by China.

Chinese Reds Travel Too
This facilitates the considerable travel which goes on among Chinese to and from China—particularly among businessmen—and also keeps the flow of foreign exchange coming in through their remittances to families in China or to the government.

Now it becomes apparent that Chinese Communists have been doing some traveling too, and the effects are beginning to multiply. An early example was the young Chinese Communist army officer who was stranded in Manila at the time of Pearl Harbor. He took to the hills and organized a band of Chinese guerrillas.

With a Filipino guerrilla outfit, this developed into the Hukbalahap organization which fought the Japanese and the post-war Philippines government. This Chinese taught the Filipinos how to fight the way the Chinese Communists fight, and no doubt refined their ideas on land reform.

Back Of Terrorism
Last week it became clear that Chinese Communists have played no small part in sparking the Communist movements in Burma and Malaya, and that they may be working in Siam.

From Burma, reliable reports say that the writings of Mao Tse-Tung, the Chinese Communist party chairman, are read there as widely as those of Russian Communists. Mao's land reform program, in particular, has been followed broadly by the Socialist Burmese government, whose Premier Thakin Nu last week said his country would "follow Russia."

Chinese Communists who led the anti-Japanese resistance in Malaya kept their arms after V-J Day. They now are said to be behind the wave of terrorism which last week swept Malayan rubber plantations and spread to the tin mining districts. Much of the labor in such places is Chinese.

Nanking Worried
Siam has been trying to keep Chinese Communists from crossing her border from Malaya, and last week the government raided Chinese secret societies, some of them Communist, in the capital at Bangkok.

In Nanking, the Chinese government is worried about a second Communist front developing to the south, partly because of Communist bands that operate along the Indo-China border—moving into China when the French are after them, and into Indo-China when the Chinese chase them.

Whether this spread of Chinese Communist influence beyond China's own confines is due to a planned design, as is probable, remains unproved. There is no doubt that lucky accidents have helped it—like dual Chinese nationality and the fact that it has had the poorest, least developed, and therefore ripest half of humanity to work on.

Lake George, N. J., June 21 (AP)—John G. Finn, 23, of Stamford, Conn., convicted of assaulting Reva Reznick a few hours before her mysterious drowning last summer, was sentenced today to serve from two and a half to five years in Dannemora.

MACHINERY FOR NEW DRAFT TO GO INTO ACTION

Washington, June 21 (AP)—The nation's military leaders were ready today to swing speedily into action building a 2-million man defense force — when President Truman pushes the draft button.

Not until 90 days after Mr. Truman signs the Selective Service revival bill can men—19 through 25—be inducted into the armed forces. But the defense chiefs were rushing plans to set up the training machinery for the thousands of peacetime draftees. Congress gave them over $14,000,000,000 to do the job of strengthening the army, navy and air force.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, said passage of the draft bill is a long step toward preventing foreign conflict. He told a news conference in Los Angeles yesterday it will "back our leadership in the world and will strengthen our foreign policy."

As to the chances of an emergency arising, Bradley said: "We're faced with the possibility anything might happen. No one knows—unless it would be 14 men in the Kremlin."

Bradley's forces received the major share of the defense billions Congress handed out and will get the largest number of men through the peacetime draft.

On the dollar score, the army got $6,767,668,163, the navy $4,749,059,250. A $3,224,000,000 appropriation to build the air force up to 70 groups, also included funds for the army and navy. Military authorities have estimated it will take about $1,700,000,000 to draft and train the future inductees.

Tentative plans call for beginning the draft with 21-year-olds. Under this plan men who turned 21 on January 1 would be first in line for induction, January 2 next and so on through December 31. Whether all eligibles in the first age group will be called before drafting is started from another group still is to be decided.

WEST EUROPE TALKS TO BEGIN

Washington, June 21 (AP)—Representatives of the western European countries soon will begin military talks with United States defense chiefs. These talks, probably to be held in Washington, will open a new phase in the development of American policy toward Europe.

Officials said today the conversations, in a sense, would be based on the Senate-approved resolution drafted by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.). It put the Senate on record as favoring United States support of regional defense alliances where they serve this country's security in still developing western European interests.

One such regional alliance is the union of Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. These nations have laid plans for broad political, economic and military cooperation which the American government hopes will provide the nucleus of a United States of Europe.

One agency of that group is a military committee functioning in London. This committee is understood to have made extensive studies of strategic problems of defending western European countries. The prospective talks will give the American high command its first information on the results of those studies. They also will be aimed at establishing a close liaison.

Japanese Beetle Quarantine Is On

Harrisburg, June 21 (AP)—A Federal-state quarantine was clamped today on the southeastern corner of Pennsylvania, heavily infested with Japanese beetles.

The State Agriculture department said the ban is against only movement of truck or refrigerator carload lots of fresh vegetables and unprocessed cut flowers.

The department said several hundred additional square miles have been added to the previous ban area of 14 southeastern states. New territory, along the front of heaviest beetle infestation, takes in previous free areas to include all of Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, Lehigh and Northampton counties.

The ban will remain in effect until the destructive pests stop flying some time in September, the department said.

Add a teaspoon of caraway seed to the water in which a corned beef tongue is cooked for a different and delicious flavor.

Adams county growers. The directors voted to ask the concerns to send representatives here to talk over the matter in the near future.

In connection with the rabbit show here in October, the group planned to begin July 1 selling advertising space in a catalogue to be prepared for the exhibit. In addition 100 feet of space was set aside for Gettysburg merchants who might wish to display merchandise in connection with the rabbit show. Pointing out that the show will be the first of its kind ever held here and should draw a great amount of attention, L. T. Goodling, Hanover, president of the county group, said he expected much interest on the part of merchants in connection with the placing of their exhibits at the show.

Plan Meeting Soon
The next meeting of the county organization will be held on call of the president, it was decided, with the president directed to get in touch with a New Jersey breeder who has made what are described as the best motion pictures of rabbit care and breeding in the country. If the New Jersey man can come here within the next month the next meeting will be held on the date at which he is able to be here. County agriculture and veterans agriculture classes are to be invited to attend that session.

Albert Kejak, a director of the county organization, was placed in charge of arrangements for an educational meeting to be held within the next week or 10 days at New Oxford.
